

American Television shows have become so internationally famous that characters like Jack Bauer, Ross Gellar, Rachel Green, and Sydney Bristow have become household names. Most people around the world are drawn to American television programs because they feel like they can get an insight into American pop culture by watching dramas and situation comedies. Additionally, most fans of American T.V. become wrapped up in the storylines because of the high production value and excellent writing. Personally speaking, I can't think of a better way to spend an evening than watching Jack Bauer save the world.

household names: are names of things that everyone knows. For example, Tom Cruise, McDonalds, and Nike.

drawn to: attracted to insight: a better understanding of how things work