

Episode 58: I don't want to say I told you so, but.....

Jason: Hey Bill said that he had some connections at Ticketmaster. He said he would be able to get some prime seats for the basketball game next week.

Jack: Bill, Bill. I wouldn't believe a word that comes out of his mouth.

Jason: Come on Jack. Bill is pretty trustworthy most of the time. Why don't we give him the benefit of the doubt on this one?

Jack: Can't do it. He has screwed me over too many times.

Jason: Well, I think he'll come through this time. You got to have some faith man.

Now we fast forward to the day before the game. Jason's telephone is ringing and Bill is on the other line.

Jason: Hey, what's up?

Bill: Hey

Jason: I can't wait for the game tomorrow. What time are we leaving?

Bill: Look man, the plan fell through. The guy who worked at Ticketmaster wasn't able to get the tickets.

Jason: Really, that sucks. Look I got to go.

Bill: Sorry man.

Jason: Yeah, whatever.

The scene changes to Jack and Jason again.

Jack: Hey Jason, why the long face?

Jason: No tickets man

Jackie: I don't want to say I told you so, but.....

Jason: Yeah, Yeah, O.K. You want me to say it. I will. You were right, you told me so.